NEW AS OF 2020 – graphic novels are now able to be submitted for the Prize.

IMPORTANT NOTE

As from 2016, the system by which publishers may submit titles to the Scotiabank Giller Prize has changed. For submissions for the 2022 Prize, the number of books a publisher can submit will depend on that imprint's inclusion on longlists and shortlists over the history of the Prize, as follows:

- 1 submission – imprints with no listings
- 2 submissions – imprints with longlisting(s) and/or shortlisting(s)

Submissions will not be accepted from newly created imprints of existing publishers. Any new imprints, created after the 2015/2016 prize eligibility period, will be included in the publisher's quota.

The system whereby publishers are requested to submit a complete list of eligible titles remains the same and the judges will continue to have the option to call-in any of these titles.

The rule which allows submissions of new works by an author who has previously won the Giller Prize remains unchanged and is not included in the publisher's submission quota.

Previous winners of the Governor General's Award will no longer receive an automatic submission and new works by these authors will be included in the publisher's submission quota.

1. THE PRIZE

- a. The Scotiabank Giller Prize presents $100,000 (CDN) to the winner and $10,000 (CDN) to each of the finalists. The Prize is awarded annually to the author of the best Canadian novel, graphic novel or collection of short stories published in English, either originally, or in translation.
- b. If a translation is shortlisted, the author will receive $7,000, the translator(s) $3,000. In the event that a translation wins, $70,000 will be awarded to the author and $30,000 will be awarded to the translator(s).
- c. The Giller Prize, named for the late literary journalist Doris Giller, was founded in her honour by her husband, Jack Rabinovitch. The Prize was first awarded in 1994.
- d. The Giller Prize partnered with Scotiabank in 2005. The purse increased from $25,000 to $50,000 and the Prize was re-branded the Scotiabank Giller Prize. In 2008, the purse grew to $70,000 and doubled to $140,000 in 2014.

2. THE JURY

- a. Each year, an appointed jury panel will be responsible for compiling a longlist of typically not less than 10 and not more than 12 titles, and a subsequent shortlist of typically not less than three and not more than five of the outstanding books, submitted to the Scotiabank Giller Prize. From the shortlist, the jury panel will be responsible for selecting one winner.
- b. The jury vows not to divulge or discuss any of the books submitted for the Prize with anyone outside of the jury panel. The jury panel agrees to discuss the books under consideration only with their fellow jurors.
- c. The jury panel will pick the best books without any consideration given to publisher, geography, gender or ethnicity.

3. ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA

- a. To be eligible, a book must be a first-edition novel, graphic novel or short story collection, written by a Canadian citizen or permanent resident of Canada.
- b. Collections of previously published work are not eligible. Any story collections containing work previously published in book form will not be eligible unless the number of new stories outweighs the number of previously published ones.
- c. To be eligible, a book must be published in English, either originally or in translation. In the case of a translation, the original work must be Canadian-authored.
- d. Books must be scheduled for publication in Canada in English between October 1, 2021, and September 30, 2022. Previous publication of a book in another language or in another country does not disqualify it. In the case of a translation, the original authored book must be published no more than five years prior to its English translation.
- e. Publishers outside of Canada may submit works from Canadian authors provided all of the eligibility requirements are met and the title is available for purchase as per rule 3.g.
- f. No entry shall be ineligible because its author has won either the Giller Prize or any other prize previously.
- g. All books/e-books must carry an ISBN number and be available for sale in retail/bookstores across Canada. Books that are available by print-on-demand only or online sales only are ineligible.
- h. No self-published books shall be eligible (that is, titles authored by any senior officer of the book's publishing firm and/or books underwritten in part or in whole by the author).
- i. No YA (young adult) books, comic books or works of poetry shall be eligible.
- j. E-book submissions are required along with material-bound form. Please send e-books as PDF files.
- k. The decision of the judges as to whether a book is eligible shall be binding.
- l. The Scotiabank Giller Prize does not accept posthumous submissions.

4. CONDITIONS OF ENTRY

Any eligible book which is entered for the Scotiabank Giller Prize shall not be eligible unless its publisher agrees:

- a. That if a book is shortlisted, to pay $1,500 to the Prize as a contribution towards shortlist advertising and promotion.
- b. To secure a signed commitment from the author, at the time a book is longlisted, to ensure the finalist agrees, that: if their book is shortlisted, there is an understanding, agreement and fulfilled obligation on the part of the publisher and author that there will be a series of events highlighting and promoting the shortlisted author, in addition to the gala, that the author is committed to attending and taking part in all events. If their book is shortlisted, the publisher and author agree, in a timely fashion, and before the above-mentioned events are underway, to sign approximately 1,500 copies of their book, all of which will be purchased from the publisher by Scotiabank for internal distribution.
- c. To spend an appropriate sum on media advertising for the winning book.
- d. To prepare and encourage its nominated and/or winning author(s) to participate in all reasonable publicity associated with the Scotiabank Giller Prize, including interviews, readings and appearances.
- e. To use their best efforts to sticker copies of the shortlisted and/or winning book(s) on all subsequent reprints with the Scotiabank Giller Prize seals (to be provided by the Prize) and, when including facsimiles of the Scotiabank Giller Prize seal on all reprints of the shortlisted and/or winning book(s), to secure the prior approval of the Prize with respect to artwork.
- f. All publishers will be required to sign a permissions agreement for books submitted to the Scotiabank Giller Prize granting the Scotiabank Giller Prize the right to authorize a Canadian publisher of its choice permission to reproduce, non-exclusively within Canada, an excerpt, chapter or short story from the works of your authors who are nominated for or named the winner of the Scotiabank Giller Prize for use in any Scotiabank Giller Prize anthology or anthologies. Publishers will receive a one-time fee as compensation for such permission.
- g. To comply with rule 5.m.

National publicity promoting the Prize and the shortlisted authors will begin at that announcement and continue until the winner is declared.
- b. The winner of the Scotiabank Giller Prize will be announced at a gala ceremony in Toronto in November 2022. So that all shortlisted authors may attend that ceremony, the Prize will bear the cost of accommodation for authors who live outside the greater Toronto area and the publisher will bear the cost of any required air or ground travel.
- c. The jury panel will select the longlist, shortlist and the winner in private deliberations immediately preceding each announcement. Publishers should be aware that they will receive no advance notice of the finalists or the winner.
